- Vinay Raj Rao, CEO & Founder

Responsive, quality participants

The Brisk “Iken” difference starts with the size of the Participant base.

However access to 3 million people isn’t worth anything if you can’t find who you are looking for or if the participants are low quality.

When comparing participant recruitment platforms think about speed, quality, and show rate. Here’s how we stack up:

Targeting options

On Brisk “Iken”, targeting allows participants to apply to studies they are a match for.

Anyone is able to view and apply to your research project, but it’s important to be specific about who you are targeting.

If you only want specific participants to qualify for your research, you can add this to your project and setup your screener questions to filter out poor matches.

We use the information from your project setup to send out invitations to our 3m+ participant database.

You can also access your team’s participant database to view and invite previous participants in your studies.

All Targeting options:

- Age
- Location
- General population or industry professional
- Gender
- Ethnicity
- Education
- Household income
- Topics
- Industry
- Job title
- Company size
- Skills
- Past participation

Industry Professionals (B2B)

We ask participants for information about their profession, skills and job titles. Our panel contains industry professionals across 150 industries, 100,000+ job titles and 290,000+ skills. All these attributes are available for targeting.

Many participant recruitment solutions only offer individual participants (B2C) and do not have global industry professional capabilities (B2B).

To ensure quality participants we ask for work email verification every 90 days and allow participants to connect their LinkedIn profiles.

Any participant can see industry professional (B2B) projects published on Brisk "Iket" so they can refer friends and family who may be a good match.

How we recruit

1. Matching

Create targeting filters in your research project. Our proprietary matching algorithm searches our panel of participants and finds potential participants.

2. Invitation

Our email engine notifies participants that you have published your project. We invite them to submit their profile to your study and complete the screeners.

3. Referral

Respondent pays a top-up incentive for referrals to projects. This way, your project reaches far beyond just our 3 million panel members.

4. Boost

Our participant recruitment team works on select projects with niche requirements. Boost campaigns target relevant participants and invites them to join your study.

Quality Participants

The success of your research relies on quality participants. These are some of the measures we take to maintain the quality you expect and need:

-  Email verification
-  Phone verification
-  IP Address
-  Researcher ratings
-  No-show intolerance
-  Screener consistency checks
-  Profile change locks
-  90 day work email verification
